Sport Business Management MSBM

Together, the Graduate Student Handbook and your graduate program handbook should serve as your main guide throughout your graduate career. The Graduate Student Handbook includes university information, policies, requirements and guidance for all graduate students. Your program handbook describes the details about graduate study and requirements in your specific program. While both of these handbooks are wonderful resources, know that you are always welcome to talk with faculty and staff in your program and in the Graduate College.

The central activities and missions of a university rest upon the fundamental assumption that all members of the university community conduct themselves in accordance with a strict adherence to academic and scholarly integrity. As a graduate student and member of the university community, you are expected to display the highest standards of academic and personal integrity.

Here are some resources to help you better understand your responsibilities:

- Academic Honesty
- Academic Integrity Training - Open to all graduate students at no cost
- Plagiarism

Introduction

Plan of Study

The DeVos Sport Business Management Program curriculum has a strong business focus along with required traditional sport management courses as well as courses focusing on ethical standards, diversity, sport and social issues and leadership in sport. Students must have a 3.0 to graduate and no more than two C's to graduate from the program.

These courses are built into a full-time schedule for students. Classes are held Monday through Friday along with the DeVos Distinguished Speaker Series. All students admitted into the program will start courses in the fall. Credit hours may vary from semester to semester. The program will offer no less than three credit hours (in the last semester) and no more than 15 credit hours per semester.

General Policies

Students in the DeVos Sport Business Management Program are required to conduct themselves in the highest professional manner in the classroom as well as while attending conferences and other events on behalf of the program. The program has a dress code of business casual for the classroom and professional attire when attending the DeVos Distinguished Speaker Series. The program expects all of the students to arrive to class on time, turn all cellular phones off and computers off, unless authorized by a specific professor, and give the professor their full attention. This program is designed for the students to complete their degree in five consecutive semesters. If for some reason, requiring approval, the student must complete any unfinished courses within seven years as the seven year rule stipulates on the graduate studies. Students must maintain a 3.0 grade point average to graduate from the DeVos Sport Business Management Program or be dismissed. Intent to graduate must be completed through myUCF.

Curriculum

Please visit the Graduate Catalog to see the current curriculum for our program.

Graduate Research

Research is such a vital part of graduate education, particularly for doctoral students. The development of research skills and the practice of good research ethics begins with graduate study. Faculty serves a crucial role and are the primary source for teaching research skills and modeling research ethics. For this section provide information on conducting responsible research, the dismissal criteria for research dishonesty and the program's expectations on research.

Provide the following information:

- Explain the research polices that involve human and animal research. Include the UCF research website research.ucf.edu/ > Research Integrity and Compliance > IRB Webpage.
- Provide an introduction and direct website link to the Proprietary and Confidential Information section in the Graduate Catalog.
- Provide an introduction and direct website link to UCF' Ownership of Intellectual Property in the Graduate Catalog.
- Provide information on available handouts or book referrals on conducting research.
- Inform students about the Pathways workshops on library research, CITI Training, and writing essentials.
- Make explicit the policy on Laboratory Safety Procedures.

Financial Support

Scholarships

The program has raised scholarship assistance specifically for DeVos students. These scholarships include but are not limited to: The NASCAR Diversity Scholarships, The DeVos Program Scholarships, The DeVos Orlando Magic Scholarships, The Jermaine A. Jones Perseverance Scholarship, and the Joe Lapchick Scholarships.

Graduate Assistants

The DeVos program has numerous students who receive Graduate Assistant positions in our office. Many GAs are required to conduct research for the Racial and Gender Report Cards, graduation rate studies, and other studies produced by The Institute for Diversity and Ethics in Sport (TIDES). Also, GAs support DeVos Program faculty with Sport Business Management undergraduate courses. Students can express their interest in these positions after they have been accepted into the program. There are also Graduate Assistant positions in The Institute for Sport and Social Justice (ISSJ) and UCF Athletics, both of which are DeVos partners. Additionally, there are Graduate Assistant positions in the other departments of the College of Business Administration.

Out of State Students

The University of Central Florida is a participating institution in the Academic Common Market (ACM) program with other southern universities sharing unique academic programs on the undergraduate and graduate level. However, the University of Central Florida only participates at the graduate level.

The Academic Common Market offers students the opportunity to enter degree programs that are not available in their home state, while being eligible to pay Florida in-state tuition rates. Students taking part in this program must be admitted by a participating university (notifying the university of their planned attendance as an ACM Scholar), and will need to obtain a letter of certification from their respective ACM state coordinator. sreb.org/academic-common-market.

International Students

International students must contact International Student Services for the latest information on student and work visas as well as other important required documentation. Their website is global.ucf.edu/. International students must also submit their transcripts through World Education Service for evaluation at wes.org/ or jsilny.com/.

The state of Florida has established various linkage agreements to assist in the development of stronger economic and social ties between Florida and strategic foreign countries. To participate in these exemptions, students must apply to the global.ucf.edu/international-students-scholars-and-professionals/fundingyoureducationatucf/ select other resources.

For more information regarding financial support specific to the DeVos Sport Business Management program, visit the Scholarships and Graduate Assistantships webpage on the College of Business Administration website.

Graduate Student Associations

Visit the Student Organizations webpage on the College of Business Administration website for information regarding graduate student organizations specific to this discipline.

Graduate Student Association (GSA)

The Graduate Student Association (GSA) is UCF's graduate organization committed to enrich graduate students' personal, educational and professional experience. To learn more or get involved, please visit facebook.com/groups/UCFgsa/.

Professional Development

The DeVos Sport Business Management Program offers professional development to all of its students in many ways. Our students are required to complete community service. They also can have internships, attend conferences, and other special student programs to promote professional development. A select number of graduate students are hired as GAs to compile research data for the nationally known Racial and Gender Report Card, as well as other national studies on graduation rates. Students are listed as co-authors of the reports.

The DeVos students take various trips throughout the program. During the second semester students will attend Team Leadership Presentations at ESPN Wide World of Sport, NASCAR, and the Orlando Magic. Senior executives in these organizations give presentations regarding their organizations vision, mission and values among other subjects.

DISC Assessment

Every student entering the program will participate in an individual DISC assessment during the first semester. The assessments classify four aspects of behavior by testing a person's preferences in word associations. DISC is an acronym for:

- Dominance – relating to control, power and assertiveness
- Influence – relating to social situations and communication
- Steadiness – relating to patience, persistence, and thoughtfulness
- Conscientiousness – relating to structure and organization

Team SBM

Team SBM is comprised of current graduate students of the DeVos Sports Business Management Program at UCF. Team SBM was created to provide members with business learning experiences through speakers, planning events, and networking activities, while also focusing on community service and fundraising. The TEAM is comprised of seven board members including one president, one vice-president, one treasurer, one secretary, one alumni relations chair, one brand development coordinator, and one fundraising chair.

Community Service

Community Service is an integral component of the DeVos Program. Working in teams, students are required to spend 62 hours throughout the fall and spring semesters and an additional 10 hours during summer at a minimum of one of the designated community service programs: Deliver the Dream, Camp Boggy Creek, Restore Orlando, Frontline Outreach, Harbor House, New Hope for Kids, Orlando City Soccer Foundation and Scholar Baller.

DeVos students have performed more than 54,000 hours of service in Central Florida.

DeVos Students Continue Hope for Stanley Foundation for Victims of Hurricane Katrina

In the wake of the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina in August 2005, DeVos Sport Business Management Graduate Program students and faculty started a fund-raising campaign that raised more than $28,000 for the victims. Program Chair Richard Lapchick and his wife, Ann Pasnak, matched the first $8,000. In a matching arrangement with the Orlando Magic, that $36,000 was then matched by the Magic so that the DeVos Sport Business Management Graduate Program was able to send $72,000 to the Hurricane victims. DeVos students Jeff Gosey and David Mueller, both from New Orleans, were able to join Richard Lapchick and the Orlando Magic team when they flew to Louisiana with 6,000 pounds of relief supplies one week after the storm in September 2005.

In December 2006 DeVos students traveled to New Orleans with Richard Lapchick, his wife Ann, their daughter Emily and Smitty Pignatelli and Allyce Najimy, two friends from Massachusetts, to help with the disaster relief efforts. While there, they met Stanley Stewart, whose home was nearly destroyed by the storm. His hope, faith and inspiration so touched the students that in the Spring of 2007 the DeVos students, in conjunction with the National Consortium for Academics and Sport, which is now known as The Institute for Sport and Social Justice (ISSJ), and assisted by the New Orleans City Council, founded Hope for Stanley Foundation (which was later changed to Alliance). The mission is to create opportunities for people in sports across the United States to help rebuild and revive the City of New Orleans.

After gutting the Stewart's home, the Foundation enlisted Smitty Pignatelli to aid with the rebuilding of the Stewart home. Mr. Pignatelli had a volunteer crew of 25 licensed contractors including electricians, plumbers, sheet rockers and carpenters at the Stewart home for eight days in September 2007. All of the materials were donated including floors, windows, cabinets, plumbing fixtures and sheet rock. One week later the original DeVos team returned and painted the inside of the home. The Stewarts moved back in before Thanksgiving 2007.

To date the Foundation has raised over $400,000 in cash and in-kind materials. The DeVos students schedule at least one trip per semester to New Orleans to continue their efforts. In total, between the Pasnak/Lapchicks, the students and the NCAS; Hope for Stanley has worked 54 trips in NOLA as of March 2018. Hope for Stanley has also organized students and student-athletes from many other campuses to volunteer in the Lower Ninth Ward of New Orleans. They have helped rebuild 142 homes with more than 53,000 hours of service.

The HFSA has also worked in Tuscaloosa, AL after the tornadoes and in Long Island, NY after Hurricane Sandy.

Please visit Hope for Stanley at sportandsocialjustice.org/services/hope-for-stanley/ to learn more about how you can help bring hope to New Orleans.

Internship Programs

While students in many sport management graduate programs may have to seek their own internship opportunities, the DeVos leadership is committed to assisting in securing a strong internship position for every student in the DeVos Program. Special Student Programs

Beyond their full-time required coursework, students participated in a variety of special activities and events that challenged them to consider a broader view of sport and society and exposed them to a number of sports leaders and world-renowned athletes.

TEAMWORK Leadership Institute

All students in the DeVos program receive diversity management training, gender violence and sexual harassment prevention training through The Institute for Sport and Social Justice. The mission of Teamwork Leadership Institute is to assist the provision of diversity training services, to apply the principles of teamwork to all areas.

Challenges that stem from cultural prejudice, intolerance and poor communication can be proactively addressed in intelligent, safe and structured ways. Diversity training is a principle means of assessing and responding to needs within a department and on a campus. Training demonstrates that diverse people have a great deal in common. Rather than being divisive issues, racial, ethnic and gender differences can serve as building blocks that strengthen any department.

Gender Violence and Sexual Harassment Prevention Program

The Huddle-Up Program is a leadership program that motivates student-athletes and student leaders to play a central role in solving problems that historically have been considered "women's issues:" rape, battering, and sexual harassment.

The mixed gender, racially diverse Huddle-Up Program, composed of former professional and college athletes, motivates men and women to work together in preventing gender violence. The four main goals of the Huddle-Up Program are to: Raise Awareness of participants about the level of men's verbal, emotional, physical and sexual abuse of women; Challenge Thinking by countering mainstream messages about gender, sex and violence; Open Dialogue by creating a safe environment for men and women to share their opinions and experiences and inspire Leadership by empowering participants with concrete opinions to effect change in their respective communities.

Mentoring Program

Each second-year student in our program will have a mentor in a major sports organization. Our policy advisory board members and other business executives volunteer to mentor our students. The process begins as our Director of External Affairs meets with each student to discuss the student's primary field of interest. Once the student's career goals and interests are identified, the Director places each student with a mentor that works with them for the remainder of their graduate career in the DeVos program.

The students are required to keep in contact with their mentor. The time and frequency of this contact will depend on the mentors/mentees schedule. This can be done on a weekly or monthly basis. DeVos students will share experiences with their mentors throughout their second year at UCF and, hopefully, throughout their careers.

Each first year student will have a second-year student as a mentor. Listed below are some of the mentors for the program.

Special Program Partners

Orlando Magic

Orlando's NBA franchise since 1989, the Magic's mission is to be world champions on and off the court, delivering legendary moments every step of the way. On an annual basis, the Orlando Magic gives more than $2 million to the local community by way of sponsorship of events, donated tickets, autographed merchandise, scholarships and grants. Orlando Magic community relations programs impact an estimated 75,000 kids each year, while a Magic staff-wide initiative provides more than 6,000 volunteer hours annually.

Since the purchase of the Orlando Magic in 1991, Rich DeVos has implemented his values of philanthropy, leadership, and family into the Magic Culture. The Magic are consistently recognized for their positive impact on the Central Florida community through philanthropic investments and community outreach. His values set the ethical standards for the DeVos Sport Business Management Program. Under the DeVos leadership, the DeVos Program has put in more than 107,000 hours of community service, and over the history of the program has improved the Central Florida area as well as the city of New Orleans in the wake of Hurricane Katrina.

The Orlando Magic hosts an annual leadership presentation exclusively for the DeVos Students. The Magic leadership team is involved in the DeVos Distinguished Speaker Series, in-class panels, and as professional mentors. Students annually volunteer to help the Orlando Magic Youth Foundation raise money for at-risk youth in the Central Florida area. More than a dozen DeVos graduates have worked for the Orlando Magic upon graduation.

The Institute for Sport and Social Justice (ISSJ)

Founded in 1985 with help of Dr. Lapchick, NCAS is a group of over 260 colleges and universities that created the first of its kind degree completion and community service programs. To date, 31,855 athletes have returned to NCAS member schools. Over 14,985 have graduated. Nationally, the NCAS athletes have worked with nearly 19.1 million students in the school outreach and community service program, which focuses on teaching youth how to improve race relations, develop conflict resolution skills, prevent gender violence and avoid drug and alcohol abuse. They have collectively donated more than 20.8 million hours of service while member colleges have donated more than $300 million in tuition assistance.

The ISSJ provides diversity management training (TLI) to sports organizations, including athletic departments and professional leagues and teams. The ISSJ has already conducted such training for the NBA, Major League Soccer, NASCAR and more than 100 university athletic departments. The ISSJ's highly acclaimed Huddle-Up Program provides training in gender violation prevention and sexual harassment. Branded A Leader (BAL) has provided leadership training to numerous campuses. The same teams that deliver TLI, Huddle-Up and BAL nationally also train the DeVos students.

The Institute for Diversity and Ethics in Sport (TIDES)

The Institute for Diversity and Ethics in Sport is part of the DeVos Sport Business Management Graduate Program in the University of Central Florida's College of Business.

Under Lapchick's leadership, the DeVos Program launched the Institute for Diversity and Ethics in Sport in December 2002. The Institute focuses on two broad areas. In the area of Diversity, the Institute publishes the critically acclaimed Racial and Gender Report Card. The Report Card, an annual study of the racial and gender hiring practices of major professional sports and college sport in the United States, shows long-term trends over a decade and highlights organizations that are notable for diversity in coaching and management staffs.

In the area of ethics, the Institute monitors some of the critical ethical issues in college and professional sport, including the potential for the exploitation of student-athletes, gambling, performance-enhancing drugs and violence in sport. The Institute publishes annual studies on graduation rates for all teams in college football bowl games, comparing graduation rates for football players to rates for overall student-athletes and including a breakdown by race. The Institute also publishes the graduation rates of the women's and men's basketball teams in the NCAA Tournament as March Madness heats up.

NASCAR

The National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, Inc. (NASCAR) is the sanctioning body for one of North America's premier sports. In 1997, Brian France told Dr. Lapchick he wanted NASCAR to look like America.

The diversity management training, facilitated by NCAS, has played a significant role in changing the culture by spending eight-hour days with small groups of NASCAR employees openly discussing the challenging issues of diversity and inclusion. No sport has done more than NASCAR regarding such training.

NASCAR and its affiliated International Speedway have employed more than 10 DeVos graduates. They also fund a graduate assistant position and provide $40,000 a year in scholarship money to the DeVos students. Each year the incoming DeVos class visits the NASCAR headquarters for a day of learning from the NASCAR leadership team.

Pathways to Success Workshops

Coordinated by the College of Graduate Studies, the Pathways to Success program offers free development opportunities for graduate students including workshops in Academic Integrity, Graduate Grantsmanship, Graduate Teaching, Personal Development, Professional Development, and Research.
